Window, Door Maker Expands In Sioux City

The Associated Press

SIOUX CITY, Iowa (AP) — A Sioux City-based maker of vinyl and aluminum windows and doors says it is expanding its South Sioux City, Neb., manufacturing operations.

The Sioux City Journal (<http://bit.ly/Jd6fV8>) says company officials of Gerkin Windows and Doors have announced plans to build a new facility in South Sioux City. The company is breaking ground on land near its current 165,000-square-foot factory built in 2004.

The new facility will allow Gerkin to increase glass production and allow for line expansion in the existing plant.

Gerkin manufactures vinyl and aluminum window and door products.
