

Intelligrated Hires Vice President Of International Division

Intelligrated®

Intelligrated® (www.intelligrated.com [1]), a leading North American-based automated material handling solutions provider, today announces the appointment of Bob Wilson to the position of vice president, international division, Intelligrated. Based in Mason, Ohio, Wilson will oversee international sales and operations.

Wilson is responsible for ensuring Intelligrated's competitiveness in international markets, and will manage operational practices, product designs and support systems. He takes over from Steve Ackerman, who was previously responsible for Intelligrated's Manufacturing Systems and international divisions, and recently announced his retirement. Wilson will report to Chris Cole, CEO, Intelligrated.

"I'm looking forward to expanding on the outstanding foundation that Steve Ackerman and his team built," said Wilson. "With my experience in international markets I can leverage Intelligrated's resources and products to provide top-class material-handling solutions to customers around the world."

Prior to joining Intelligrated, Wilson gained sales engineering management experience in the Asia-Pacific region as well as Central and South America through his work with Cooper Standard and Delphi Powertrain Systems. He holds a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering from Michigan Technological University and a master's degree in engineering science from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.
