

Garland GarTalk Blog

The Garland Company, Inc.

The Garland Company, Inc. (Cleveland, OH) recently announced its commitment to interactively connect a world-wide community of building owners, facility managers, contractors, architects, and suppliers with its family of Garland employee owners through the use of social media. GarTalk is an interactive blog where Garland experts post technically robust content about commercial roofing, exterior waterproofing, and other construction-related topics. Customers are invited to join the conversations by posting their own comments and questions. Garland intends to develop the blog into a comprehensive central repository of technical knowledge to help educate and inform individuals seeking best practice methodologies for waterproofing the exterior building envelope. Visitors can subscribe to topic-specific feeds to keep abreast of areas of special interest such as sustainable design or metal roofing.
